

A point-line incidence structure

Brian Curtin, University of South Florida

We discuss a point-line incidence structure that arises in connection with certain objects resembling Latin squares. We will offer a few examples, briefly prove a basic properties, and discuss their connection to other mathematical objects.

Keywords: Latin rectangle, orthogonal array, self-action, bireversible automata